

Marie 3 wins best in category!

With an overall score of 2.4 ("Good"), Swandoo's rotating child seat comes in first at this year's consumer ratings' safety tests.

Vienna, October 29th, 2021

Swandoo's Marie 3 comes in as top performer, placing the young Vienna-based brand once again at the forefront of child safety.

The autumn 2021 test, conducted by the top consumer rating organisations, ADAC, ÖAMTC, and TCS, crowned Marie 3 best in category, with an overall score of 2.4 ("Good").

This success can be largely ascribed to Marie's outstanding performance in frontal and side impact crash tests. Whilst achieving a score of 2.0 ("Good") in the safety category, Swandoo's rotating car seat was awarded 5 stars – the best possible result – in rear-facing position.

A testament to Swandoo's dedication, this is a great achievement for child safety from a small, passionate brand.

Top marks in the categories 'ergonomics' and 'handling' further strengthen the young brand's mission of developing user-friendly products that help families achieve a more joyful lifestyle.

According to Nicolás Moeller, Managing Director Global Sales and Marketing:

"Swandoo's aim is to grant the best possible protection for small passengers with the help of the best intuitive handling and very good protection. The current excellent results for Marie from ADAC, ÖAMTC and TCS confirm that we have achieved both for the benefit of all children. Moreover, being rewarded test winner, Swandoo is confident to continuously develop the safest possible car seats."
